

Bet you've never attended a

Dung Beetle Field Day

We hadn't either, so that's why we decided to organize one.

Please join us as Dr. Pat Richardson, noted dung beetle expert from the University of Texas at Austin, explains the importance of these little critters at a program featuring a morning video presentation and a trip to our farm in the afternoon for some hands-on experience (with plastic gloves provided, of course).

The date is June 18 and the place is Linn, Mo.

Other dung beetle fans taking part are Dr. Dick Richardson, a biologist at U of T and husband of Dr. Pat; Dr. Jim Nardi – insect physiologist at U of Illinois; Mark Sturges – Oregon compost tea/dung beetle evangelist; Dr. Will Winter, Minnesota veterinarian and long-time beetle fan; Greg Judy – ultra high stock density grazer from Missouri, and author of Comeback Farms.

The cost is $100 in advance and $125 at the door; price includes lunch. Any revenue in excess of expenses will be used to colonize dung beetles.
